The stock market was comparatively quiet today. The market opened strong and advanced sharply, but a reaction some set in and a decline of 1462 per cent ensued. The trading element was lisposed to take the bear side, and hammered the list and succeeded in forcing a considerable amount of long stock. The enormous increase in the bank reserve was looked upon as a bull argument, but the traders who are short took prompt measures to counteract its effect, and persisted in their sales. The buying was considered better than selling. The losses for the day were 14.001 per cent outside of a few of the specialities. Sales were 120.004, including 15,003 unlisted

Cancaso, May 20.—There was a little bulge in wheat at the opening this morning, caused by the local scalping clique making a bluff at buying, but it did not last long. There was a heavy business in corn. The brilliant weather was the controlling in fluence. Closing showed a decline from opening prices of le for July and \(\frac{1}{2}\)e for September. Outs were quiet during the greater part of the session, closing at from \(\frac{1}{2}\) to \(\frac{1}{2}\)e lower. Trade in provisions was light, and so were the changes in prices. Hog receipts were only 7,000 head, and prices for them \(\frac{1}{2}\)e higher. The closing quotations show an advance of burely \(\frac{1}{2}\)e in lard and no change whatever in ribs.

LOCAL MARKETS.

But few changes have taken place in the local market the past week. Wheat fell from 67 to 66 cents on Thursday, the sales being quite limited. Flour has held its own, with fair sales at quoted prices. Corn remained firm all the week at 48 cents, and dropped to 47 cents Saturday. Rye took a jump from 48 to 50 cents on Saturday. The market was steady and firm. Ground feed took a tumble of $1 per ton, and is now held at $20. Corn meal also suffered a decline of $1 per ton, and is not quoted at $19.50. Potatoes are firm at 70 cents per bushel, being an increase of 5 cents per bushel during the past week. All kinds of groceries have remained firm and unchanged. he Indias Should be Given a Chance to Develop -- The Reservation Spotem, by Itself, a Failure.

"The Indians in this country, to begin with," said Dr. Lyman Abbott, when I said that eminent authority to give me an idea of the present con-dition of the real Americans, "were placed on reservations about twenty years ago, the idea being to keep them on land of their own, among them-selves, until they could be educated and fitted for civilized life. The Indians did not gain anything by that experiment. At the present time the In-dians on the New York state reservation, and yet they are as uncivillaed, immoral, pagan in a great many in-stances, at least, as their brethren in

"It was at the Lake Mohonk conference, about 1885, that the reservation system was first effectively opposed. As a result the bill to divide the land among the Indians in severalty passed congress. Finally a plan giving secular school control to the government was accepted by President Harrison's

"Under Commissioner Morgan a very efficient system of education had been organized; the appropriations have been very considerably increased and if, under the present administration, the work is carried on as efficiently and vigorously at it was under the last, there is no reason why in four years from now there should not be substantial educational provision under the federal government for the education of all Indian children of suitable age who are, or recently have been, on the reservations."

"What further reforms, doctor, are STRAW-45:66 per ton.

civil service reform in the Indian department. Everything, of course, de-pends on the personnel of the agents and their subordinates. Under Gen. Harrison's administration the civil service reform rules were extended to the school-teachers in the Indian service, which was a distinct gain."

"Do you think the civil service rules should be applied in the selection of the agents?"

"It is not practicable, in my judgment, to extend those rules to the Indian agent. The agent must be selected for qualities which cannot be got at by a competitive examination. But, under the last administration, the appointments were made on a thoroughly bad principle. The commis-sioner of Indian affairs was never consulted (I believe not in a single instance) in respect to the appointment of any agent. The principle of what was called 'home rule' was adopted by the secretary of the interior, under which the Indian agents were appointon the nomination or request of the local politicians in the state or territory in which the reservation, over which the agent exercises an almost despotic control, was situated. Some very incompetent agents were appointed. When an Indian war was threatened one of them ran away from his post and did not come back until he came with the army.

"What is now desired by all friends of the Indians is that President Cleveland shall appoint an Indian commissioner who is familiar with the Indian work and the men in the field, and shall allow him to weed out the incompetent and unworthy agents, and evicourage him to keep in their places all the agents that are competent and worthy, regardless of politics.

"Before the inauguration of President Cleveland a number of gentlemen headed by myself waited upon him at Lakewood in the interests of Indian

"Mr. Cleveland thoroughly approved of the general principle we laid down. He also asked us to suggest some names for Indian commissioner, and I believe some names were afterwards given to him by the deputation. We also suggested to Mr. Cleveland that the Indian accents should be appointed male trouble of the severest kind for over three years. I have paid $50 during on the grounds of competency and without regard to politics. We also urged the extension and development of the educational system." "What would be the qualifications of an acceptable Indian agent?" "First of all, the agent should be a man of thorough honesty, with a real interest in the moral and intellectual development of the Indian race. He should be a man of affairs, with a strong and resolute will, so that he can be neither corred nor fattered out of the performance of his duty, either by the indiam on the one hand, or by unsurapulous whites on the

While Mr. T. J. Richey, of Altona, Mo. other "Moreover, the position could be aleeated by giving the agent a higher componention and holding him to a atrict accountability but while my imagent, ought to be increased it is not seach tothethat I bless the government first establishes the principle to look for the best sack for the office "

Acide from the Lake Mobork conference ductor, what other organization, with headquarters at Philadel-phia, under the secretaryship of Hes-bert Weich. Then there is a Ladies' bert Weich. Then there is a Ladies' Indian Rights association of which Miss Quinton is president. Then there are, throughout the country, local associations in connection with these two central national bodies. All three societies agree, substantially, as to what shall be done for the Indian. Some years ago there was a society called "The Indian Defense association," which fought to maintain the reservation system, and published a newspaper for the advancement of its views, but I think that has disbanded.

"The character of the Indian legisla-"The character of the Indian legisla-tion during Gen. Harrison's administra-tion is not easy to define. The main question was that of increasing the ap-propriations for the schools. They were increased, perhaps, as fast as it could be reasonably expected. But another thing that the Indian very much needs is some extension of the courts, to pro-tect his rights, on one hand, and to make him amenable to law on the other. My judgment is that plan should be carried out by the appointment of police justices by the federal judges, and the protection and judicial admin-istration of the Indians should be intrusted to these branches of the federal

"I believe moreover that the sooner the Indian is treated like any other man, the better. I am in favor of making them citizens. At one time there were some complications in the Five Tribes which made it difficult, if not impossible, for us to force them to take that action. But, if they are ready for ettisenship, we ought to be ready for it. The whole Indian problem would be solved in a moment if the nation would treat the red man as we treat any other.

"The result of experiments, on a large scale, have shown the Indians to be amenable to government, to be good soldiers and industrious workers. I do not believe in any man's power to sit in his own library and form an a priori conception of what is the possible de-velopment of somebody else. Let every man, white, black and red, have a free chance to grow and make what he can of himself. The result alone can determine what his power of growth and development is."
"Do you think the Indian is treach

"No. He has been, on the whole, more trustworthy in dealing with the whites than the whites have been in dealing with him. And as to that re-mark about a dead Indian, apart from further considerations, the statistics conclusively show that it costs the government a great deal less to edu-cate the Indian and make him self-supporting than it does to either kill him or support him in idleness. As far as work and the desire for work are concerned Indiana are like most white folks-some do and some don't like to work. There is as much difference between the different tribes of Indiana as there is between the different classes of whites. They have made very good-police, good agriculturists, they have been successful in caring for stock and, where they have had the proper advantages, they have made them-selves efficient in mechanical and industrial pursuits of various kinds.

"The social future of the Indian may be foreseen in his incipient tendency to intermarry and gradually be absorbed in the white race. That he will continue to so intermarry more and more I am convinced. Undoubtedly there are many such marringes contracted at the present time." "How are Indians taught religion?"

"The Catholics have extensive missions among the Indians, and so have the Protestant depominations. Hitherto, most of the schools have been missionary schools. As they become sec-ular schools, carried on by the federal government, the churches will have to concentrate their work on churches and Sunday schools instead of on secular education. In the east the Hampton school in Virginia is a private enterprise, having relations with the government, which sends In-dians there and pays for their tuition. It has to raise fifty thousand dollars every year in order to carry on its work, and there is no better cause ever presented to the people than this school. There is an school under Capt. Pratt at Carlisle, Pa. Then there are a number of schools in the west, besides the schools on the reservations themselves, and which are cared for by the government, also schools of private enterprise. In these schools the Indians are taught the rudiments of English education, also industrial pursuits. But some of the schools carry out the industrial training better than others because they are better equipped.

"Judging from President Cleveland's administration, I think that during the next four years he will carry on the dissolution of the reservation system and the giving of land in severalty. but he will do that somewhat cautiously. He will push forward the work of education as rapidly as congress will give him the means to do it. He regards education as the key to the whole situation. The you think the Indian bureau should be an independent depart-No: I think it is better to keep it a branch of the department of the in-terior. I do not see any advantage that would accrue to the Indian by making it independent. But I think a great deal more regard should be paid to the independence of the Indian commissioner than has been done in GEORGE J. MANSOF.
